STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE
PUBLIC UTILITIES COMMISSION
DW 14-075
AQUARION WATER COMPANY OF NEW HAMPSHIRE, INC.
Verified Petition to Credit Customers for Benefit Arising from Change in Tax Regulation
Summary of Order Nisi No. 25,692 Establishing Deferred Liability
July 10, 2014
Aquarion Water Company of New Hampshire, Inc. (Aquarion), seeks approval of a mechanism to pass through to customers an anticipated tax benefit in the approximate amount of $905,000 dollars. Aquarion proposes to net out deferred revenues from the delayed application of its 2014 Water Infrastructure and Conservation Adjustment (WICA) surcharge. Aquarion proposes to apply a credit to customer bills beginning January 1, 2015, and continuing for a three-year period. The petition and subsequent docket filings, other than any information for which confidential treatment is requested or granted by the Commission, is posted to the New Hampshire Public Utilities Commission website at <http://www.puc.nh.gov/Regulatory/Docket/2013/13-314.html>.
In September 2103, the United States Department of the Treasury, Internal Revenue Service (IRS) adopted regulations that allow taxpayers to expense certain repair and maintenance costs that Aquarion has historically capitalized. The regulations permit Aquarion to reflect a catch-up adjustment on its 2013 federal tax return, limited to the amount of state and federal taxes paid by Aquarion in 2011 through 2013. Aquarion calculates that its taxes for that period will equal $905,000 dollars. Aquarion will therefore be able to take advantage of a $905,000 adjustment by expensing capital improvements that it made during 2007 through 2013. To pass through this benefit to its customers, Aquarion proposes to create a deferred regulatory liability. It would first offset the regulatory liability with an estimated $71,766 in 2014 WICA revenues that have been accruing since April 1, 2014, but which have not yet been collected in rates. Aquarion would then pass through the remainder of the tax benefit to its customers through an estimated 4% credit on customer bills beginning January 1, 2015. Aquarion requests a period of three-year for the credit.
Commission Staff and the Office of the Consumer Advocate recommend approval of Aquarion's request to create the credit. They also recommend that the Commission defer ruling on the period over which the benefit will be passed through to customers until Aquarion files its tax return in September 2014 and reports the exact amount of the tax benefit to the Commission.
The Commission approves Aquarion's request to offset the estimated $71,766 in accrued WICA revenues and to pass through the remainder of the tax benefit to customers through a credit beginning January 1, 2015. The Commission defers ruling on the period over which the benefit will be credited to customers until Aquarion files its 2013 tax return and provides an update to the Commission with the exact amount of the tax benefit to be received.
In order to assure that all interested parties receive notice of this docket and have an opportunity to request a hearing, the Commission will delay the effectiveness of its approval until August 8, 2014. All persons interested in responding to the Commission's approval may submit their comments or file a written request for a hearing which states the reason and basis for a hearing no later than July 25, 2014. Any party interested in responding to such comments and request for hearing shall do so no later than August 1, 2014. Following consideration of any comments and request for hearing received, the Commission may further extend the effective date of its approval. The Commission's approval shall become final and effective on August 8, 2014, unless the Commission orders otherwise.

Verified Petition to Credit Customers for Benefit Arising from Change in Tax Regulation

July 10, 2014

Aquarion Water Company of New Hampshire, Inc. (Aquarion), seeks approval of a mechanism to pass through to customers an anticipated tax benefit in the approximate amount of $905,000 dollars. Aquarion proposes to net out deferred revenues from the delayed application of its 2014 Water Infrastructure and Conservation Adjustment (WICA) surcharge. Aquarion proposes to apply a credit to customer bills beginning January 1, 2015, and continuing for a three-year period. In September 2013, the United States Department of the Treasury, Internal Revenue Service (IRS) adopted regulations that allow taxpayers to expense certain repair and maintenance costs that Aquarion has historically capitalized. The regulations permit Aquarion to reflect a catch-up adjustment on its 2013 federal tax return, limited to the amount of state and federal taxes paid by Aquarion in 2011 through 2013. To pass through this benefit to its customers, Aquarion proposes to create a deferred regulatory liability. It would first offset the regulatory liability with an estimated $71,776 in 2014 WICA revenues that have been accruing since April 1, 2014, but which have not yet been collected in rates. Aquarion would then pass through the remainder of the tax benefit to its customers through an estimated 4% credit on customer bills beginning January 1, 2015. Aquarion requests a period of three-years for the credit.

Commission Staff and the Office of the Consumer Advocate recommend approval of Aquarion's request to create the credit. They also recommend that the Commission defer ruling on the period over which the benefit will be passed through to customers until Aquarion files its tax return in September 2014 and reports the exact amount of the tax benefit to the Commission.

The Commission approves Aquarion's request to offset the estimated $71,776 in accrued WICA revenues and to pass through the remainder of the tax benefit to customers through a credit beginning January 1, 2015. The Commission defers ruling on the period over which the benefit will be credited to customers until Aquarion files its 2013 tax return and provides an update to the Commission with the exact amount of the tax benefit to be received.

In order to assure that all interested parties receive notice of this docket and have an opportunity to request a hearing, the Commission will delay the effectiveness of its approval until August 8, 2014. All persons interested in responding to the Commission's approval may submit their comments or file a written request for a hearing which states the reasons and basis for a hearing no later than July 25, 2014. Any party interested in responding to such comments and request for hearing shall do so no later than August 1, 2014. Following consideration of any comments and request for hearing received, the Commission may further extend the effective date of its approval. The Commission's approval shall become final and effective on August 8, 2014, unless the Commission orders otherwise.

OFFICIALS: LAWS ADDRESS COLLEGE SEXUAL ASSAULTS

BY HOLLY RAMER Associated Press

HANOVER — Federal education and Justice Department officials speaking at a Dartmouth College summit on sexual assault said Monday they are open to the idea of new legislation to address the issue but already have effective tools at their disposal.

Representatives from more than 60 colleges and universities are attending this week's conference at Dartmouth, one of 55 colleges and universities being investigated by the federal Education Department for how it handles sexual harassment and assault complaints. Participants on Monday heard from Catherine Lhamon, the Education Department's assistant secretary for civil rights, and Anurima Bhargava from the Justice Department's division of civil rights.

The Education Department and a White House task force on campus sexual assault have taken a series of steps to draw attention to the treatment of sexual assault victims and force campuses to address the problem. Meanwhile, Sen. Claire McCaskill, D-Mo., and other senators are exploring legislative ways to empower victims, simplify laws and rules colleges and universities follow, and find ways that campuses and local authorities can better coordinate.

“I’m open and enthusiastic about what may be forthcoming, but where I sit today, I think we have a set of very, very effective tools,” Lhamon said, denying an audience member's suggestion that current laws lack teeth.

Those tools include the threat of litigation and the potential loss of federal funding for not complying with Title IX, which prohibits gender discrimination, and Lhamon said four schools have come close to the latter sanction in the last 10 months.

“I don’t think it is an empty threat,” she said. “If a school is told that it is not compliant with Title IX in any respect and refuses to come into compliance, I will go to enforcement and I am prepared to withhold federal funds.”

Both officials were asked to respond to recent comments from McCaskill and Molly Corbett Broad, president of the American Council on Education, which represents college presidents.

Releasing a national survey her office conducted on campus sexual assault, McCaskill said institutions must “recognize sexual violence for what it is — a crime — and work to prevent it and effectively address it when it does occur.” In a letter to a Senate committee last month, Broad noted that campus disciplinary procedures were designed to resolve issues of student conduct with respect to academic matters, not felonies, and should not be proxies for the criminal justice system.

Bhargava said her office is not asking educational institutions to engage in criminal investigations, but the law requires colleges and universities to ensure students have a safe learning environment.

Lhamon agreed.

“While I agree colleges and universities shouldn’t be criminal justice systems, it is necessarily part of their role to make sure their students are safe,” she said. “I resist pretty hard the notion that schools don’t have a role in this. They absolutely do.”

Dartmouth, which reported 24 sexual assaults in 2012, compared with 15 in 2011, 22 in 2010 and 10 in 2009, has been working on multiple fronts to prevent sexual assault, encourage reporting and hold perpetrators accountable.

In April, Dartmouth President Philip Hanlon called sexual assault one of three critical issues — along with high-risk drinking and lack of inclusion — that are compromising the school's core mission. Two months later, the college implemented a new system for handling sexual assaults that includes harsher sanctions and having a trained external expert investigate allegations and determine responsibility for sexual assault.

Her family wishes to extend their sincere gratitude to the staff of the Browning Unit at Sentry Hill, where she received extraordinary loving care.

Mae is survived by her daughters, Christine, Stephanie, Sheila and Jennifer; her son-in-law, Michael Spinney;

PORTSMOUTH HERALD
Tuesday, July 15, 2014

In September 2013, the United States Department of the Treasury, Internal Revenue Service (IRS) adopted regulations that allow taxpayers to expense certain repair and maintenance costs that Aquarion has historically capitalized. The regulations permit Aquarion to reflect a catch-up adjustment on its 2013 federal tax return, limited to the amount of state and federal taxes paid by Aquarion in 2011 through 2013. Aquarion calculates that its taxes for that period will equal $905,000 dollars. Aquarion will therefore be able to take advantage of a $905,000 adjustment by expensing capital improvements that it made during 2007 through 2013. To pass through this benefit to its customers, Aquarion proposes to create a deferred regulatory liability. It would first offset the regulatory liability with an estimated $71,766 in 2014 WICA revenues that have been accruing since April 1, 2014, but which have not yet been collected in rates. Aquarion would then pass through the remainder of the tax benefit to its customers through an estimated 4% credit on customer bills beginning January 1, 2015. Aquarion requests a period of three-years for the credit.

Commission Staff and the Office of the Consumer Advocate recommend approval of Aquarion's request to create the credit. They also recommend that the Commission defer ruling on the period over which the benefit will be passed through to customers until Aquarion files its tax return in September 2014 and reports the exact amount of the tax benefit to the Commission.

The Commission approves Aquarion's request to offset the estimated $71,776 in accrued WICA revenues and to pass through the remainder of the tax benefit to customers through a credit beginning January 1, 2015. The Commission defers ruling on the period over which the benefit will be credited to customers until Aquarion files its 2013 tax return and provides an update to the Commission with the exact amount of the tax benefit to be received.

In order to assure that all interested parties receive notice of this docket and have an opportunity to request a hearing, the Commission will delay the effectiveness of its approval until August 8, 2014. All persons interested in responding to the Commission's approval may submit their comments or file a written request for a hearing which states the reason and basis for a hearing no later than July 25, 2014. Any party interested in responding to such comments and request for hearing shall do so no later than August 1, 2014. Following consideration of any comments and request for hearing received, the Commission may further extend the effective date of its approval. The Commission's approval shall become final and effective on August 8, 2014, unless the Commission orders otherwise.

 PUBLIC UTILITIES COMMISSION
 DW 14-078
 AQUARIUM WATER COMPANY OF NEW HAMPSHIRE, INC.
 Verified Petition to Credit
 Customers for Benefit Arising from Change in Tax Regulation
 Summary of Order Nisi No. 25,692
 Establishing Deferred Liability
 July 10, 2014

Aquarion Water Company of New Hampshire, Inc. (Aquarion), seeks approval of a mechanism to pass through to customers an anticipated tax benefit in the approximate amount of $905,000 dollars. Aquarion proposes to net out deferred revenues from the delayed application of its 2014 Water Infrastructure and Conservation Adjustment (WICA) surcharge. Aquarion proposes to apply a credit to customer bills beginning January 1, 2015, and continuing for a three-year period. The petition and subsequent docket filings, other than any information for which confidential treatment is requested of or granted by the Commission, is posted to the New Hampshire Public Utilities Commission website at <http://www.puc.nh.gov/Regulatory/Docketbk/2013/13-314.html>.

In September 2103, the United States Department of the Treasury, Internal Revenue Service (IRS) adopted regulations that allow taxpayers to expense certain repair and maintenance costs that Aquarion has historically capitalized. The regulations permit Aquarion to reflect a catch-up adjustment on its 2013 federal tax return, limited to the amount of state and federal taxes paid by Aquarion in 2011 through 2013. Aquarion calculates that its taxes for that period will equal $905,000 dollars. Aquarion will therefore be able to take advantage of a $905,000 adjustment by expensing capital improvements that it made during 2007 through 2013. To pass through this benefit to its customers, Aquarion proposes to create a deferred regulatory liability. It would first offset the regulatory liability with an estimated $71,776 in 2014 WICA revenues that have been accruing since April 1, 2014, but which have not yet been collected in rates. Aquarion would then pass through the remainder of the tax benefit to its customers through an estimated 4% credit on customer bills beginning January 1, 2015. Aquarion requests a period of three-years for the credit.

Commission Staff and the Office of the Consumer Advocate recommend approval of Aquarion's request to create the credit. They also recommend that the Commission defer ruling on the period over which the benefit will be passed through to customers until Aquarion files its tax return in September 2014 and reports the exact amount of the tax benefit to the Commission.

The Commission approves Aquarion's request to offset the estimated $71,776 in accrued WICA revenues and to pass through the remainder of the tax benefit to customers through a credit beginning January 1, 2015. The Commission defers ruling on the period over which the benefit will be credited to customers until Aquarion files its 2013 tax return and provides an update to the Commission with the exact amount of the tax benefit to be received.

In order to assure that all interested parties receive notice of this docket and have an opportunity to request a hearing, the Commission will delay the effectiveness of its approval until August 8, 2014. All persons interested in responding to the Commission's approval may submit their comments or file a written request for a hearing which states the reason and basis for a hearing no later than July 25, 2014. Any party interested in responding to such comments and request for hearing shall do so no later than August 1, 2014. Following consideration of any comments and request for hearing received, the Commission may further extend the effective date of its approval. The Commission's approval shall become final and effective on August 8, 2014, unless the Commission orders otherwise.

Assume you hold the West hand and lead your singleton diamond against four spades. East wins with the jack and continues with the K-A, on which you play first the seven and then the four of hearts.

East obediently returns a low heart, but declarer goes up with the ace, cashes the A-K of clubs, leads a trump to dummy's eight, ruffs a club, leads a trump to dummy's queen and ruffs another club. South then crosses to the ace of spades, simultaneously drawing your last trump, and discards his deuce of hearts on the jack of clubs to make the contract.

You might go on to the next

West dealer.
 Neither side vulnerable.

 Opening lead — four of diamonds.

deal without giving the matter further thought, but the fact remains that you could have stopped South from making his game. Instead of discarding a heart on the third round of diamonds, you should have ruffed your partner's ace and returned a trump!

Had you done this, South would have found it impossible to make the contract. Your trump return would have killed one of dummy's vital entries before declarer could cash his A-K of clubs, and he eventually would have lost a heart trick to go down one.

Trumping partner's ace is, of course, a spectacular and unusual play, but it makes a lot of sense here — if you stop to think about it. To begin with, it's a play that can't cost you a thing, since the trump you are wasting is of no earthly use to you.

More important than that is the 100 percent certainty that if South has a heart or club loser in his hand, it will be utterly impossible for him to avoid losing that trick — provided you trump your partner's ace at trick three and return a trump at trick four to guard against the hand South actually has.

Tomorrow:
 A matter of judgment.
